stone pier of the bridge nearest the shore.

The steamer was wrecked but did not sink immediately. For a time it was wedged against the pier by the current and held while the terror-stricken children and the accompanying adults olimbed up the pier to the bridge. In this way aimost half of the passengers were saved.

Before all could reach safety the barge was veered around by the current and finally swung loose from the pier and floated down stream. In the sudden swinging out of the barge the three who lost their lives were thrown into the water and swept away.

The barge, filled with screaming children, floated into the channel, and for a time it seemed that all were doomed to parish. But from further down the stream the catastrophe had been withnessed, and rescuers put in skiffs to meet the barge.

Encouragement was called to the children and they were urged to sit down and be quiet. This had good effect. The rescuing boats surrounded the barge and the children were quickly taken from it and were safely landed.

(Special to The Evening World.)
PLAINFIELD, N. J., June 3.—His face swollen from crying and his eyes filled with tears, Willie James, the boy slayer of little Theresa Watson, faced a jury and Coroner to-day in Boise's Hotel, where the inquest into the death of his victim was held. was dogged and almost as unconcerned as he was before his interview with Mr. Criggs.

The ante-mortem statement of the Watson child was read toward the close of the inquest.

For the county Prosecuting Attorney Griggs appeared to see that the evidence was properly brought out. In the courtroom was the mother of the boy, while to her skirts clung two children, Ethel and Orville, who were with Willie when he shot little Tessie.

Blood is thicker than water, even with children who have been told that something was wrong, and neither of these tots was of any service to the State in its case against the brother. Since coming out of the woods they say they heard a shot fired, but were not with Willie when Tessie was shot.

Her Ante-Morten Statement.

Her Ante-Morten Statement.

Because of the failure of this evidence the State had to rest its case on the ante-mortem statement made by the Watson child. In this statement, which Willie heard read to-day to the Jury, the little one told how, after running away to play Indians and be bandits, Willis shot her while she sat on the ground. She says one shot hit her in the thumb and another hit her "here," and to emphazise the "here" the dying child had put her hand on her abdomen.

At the end of the inquest it is certain Willie will be taken at once before County Judge Schenck and sent to the State Home for Boys, in Jamesburg. The sentence will be an indefinite one, and undoubtedly will last until the boy is twenty-one years oid. Her Ante-Morten Statement.
